Couldn't Lift Ten Pounds.

Doan's Kidney Pills Brought Strength and Health to the Sufferer, Making Him Feel Twenty-Five Years Younger.

Sick kidneys cause a weak, lame or aching back, and a weak back makes a weak man. Can't be well and strong until the kidneys are cured. Treat them with Doan's Kidney Pills. Here's the testimony of one man cured.

J. B. CORTON.

I could have raised ten pounds of weight from the ground, the pain was so severe. This was my condition when I began using Doan's Kidney Pills. They quickly relieved me and now I am never troubled as I was. My back is strong and I can walk or ride a long distance and feel just as strong as I did twenty-five years ago. I think so much of Doan's Kidney Pills that I have given a supply of the remedy to some of my neighbors and they have also found good results. If you can sit anything from this rambling note that will be of any service to you, or to any one suffering from kidney trouble, you are at liberty to do so.

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mr. Corton will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address: Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Sold by all dealers; price, fifty cents per box.

GOVERNOR COBB'S MESSAGE.

I especially urge you to change and improve the laws bearing upon the question of child labor in this State. Maine is lagging here and the children themselves are helpless. You must be their champions, and neither the thoughtlessness of parents nor the indifference of employers must be permitted to interfere with the performance of the State's manifest duty to provide, as best she may, for the moral, physical and educational welfare of these children to whom unfortunately so many of the pleasures and opportunities of childhood are denied.

Two years ago, speaking in this place and under similar circumstances, I ventured the assertion that the public condition resulting from the nullification of the prohibitory law was the greatest issue confronting the people of Maine. The representatives of the people must that issue, recognize its importance and the Sturgis law was enacted, a measure designed for no purpose other than to correct or lessen the evils of nullification. Under its provisions the Enforcement Commission was appointed, and for about eighteen months Maine has witnessed the unusual spectacle of men clothed with legal authority, but operating directly through Executive order and initiative, performing the duties of the functions of certain officials elected by popular vote, who either wilfully or lacking both courage and ability have neglected the duties imposed upon them by their state of office. Probably no single piece of legislation placed on our Statute Books has ever caused so much general discussion or created such intense and bitter differences of opinion and dissensions as the Sturgis law. I cherish no illusions in regard to it. I know it is condemned by many as false in principle and contrary to the spirit of our institutions, expensive, inefficient, the outgrowth of political necessity and the last desperate attempt of fanaticalism to check the swelling movement for a liberal and cosmopolitan treatment of the liquor problem. I know that a hostile sentiment hastens to censor not only the law itself, but the men charged with its enforcement and their methods. Their failures are magnified and ridiculed, their successes overlooked or belittled, their sincerity of purpose and honesty of motive questioned, and the belief assiduously cultivated and encouraged that they are the known disturbers of the peace, the real enemies of order. But these arguments, criticisms and accusations are neither unanswerable nor insurmountable. Many of them are palpably superficial and unfair, and the Sturgis law will stand or fall by a fair presentation of the facts and their rigorous analysis, not by the demands of a self-interested prejudice or the envenomed hopes of any political party.

There will be placed before you at an early date by the Enforcement Commission a full and complete report of the operation of this law and a statement of all the expenses incurred. Upon its publication it is to be expected that this whole question will be opened for debate by the members of this assembly and this debate will be welcomed by all. At the present time the Deputy Enforcement Commissioners are withdrawn from all the Counties. This course was simply an act of justice to the incoming sheriffs, and the insinuation that it might have been withheld in all fairness until a later date. If it becomes apparent that the local officials intend to permit or resume a policy of non-enforcement and the services of the Deputy Commissioners are not again brought into requisition, there will then be ample opportunity for just and timely criticism.

The essential features of the Sturgis law are clear and its purposes obvious. I have yet to hear any sound argument in behalf of nullification of the law, and but few men have had the temerity to openly advocate it. All will agree to the proposition that the local officials should enforce the prohibitory law in the first instance, but if they fail to do this and it is shown that they have failed, the fact itself stands that the law is nullified and needs vindication by some other means. When this question was before the last Legislature, there were three ways by which the nullification of the prohibitory law could have been prevented: First, by dutiful action of the local officials; second, by the repeal of the prohibitory law itself, involving resubmission and the adoption of some method of license to regulate the liquor traffic, and third by the authorization and exercise of powers similar to those granted the Enforcement Commissioners under the Sturgis law. The local officials could not or would not act, prohibition continued to be the policy of the State and a trial of the Sturgis law was imperative. I am attempting to discuss the measure purely as a means to prevent nullification, and believe that a large majority of the law-abiding citizens of the State, irrespective of party, substantially agree that the law was necessary and that it has justified its existence. The day of open and easy defiance of the prohibitory law has passed in Maine. Public sentiment and all the moral forces of the State have been aroused and arrayed against it, and it will never return. With all the clamor against the expense of the Sturgis law, with all the outcry alleging political trickery, insincerity and cowardice on the part of its sponsors and its officials, still held to the opinion that the people of Maine believe that nullification is infinitely worse than any law which seeks to prevent it, and respectfully submit that it is incumbent upon every man who believes in the principle of law-enforcement as an indispensable to the cause of good government and good citizenship, to support the Sturgis law or to propose and support some other measure which will advance that cause as well as the enforcement of the prohibitory law by means of the Enforcement Commission has brought the resubmission question into such prominence that it would invite grave misunderstanding. The statement will stand unchallenged that speculation on the action this Legislature may take in dealing with resubmission is causing more comment and exciting more interest than any other topic of public moment in Maine. I enter upon a brief discussion of this question with reluctance, not because of the lack of convictions or an unwillingness to express them, but simply because of the doubt in my mind as to my ability to present some of its phases without violating the proprieties of an occasion upon which references to party politics are neither expected nor desired.

Every thoughtful and fair-minded student of political conditions in Maine must admit that there is a very strong sentiment in favor of the proposition to give the voters an opportunity to express at the polls their opinion of the present prohibitory law. While this sentiment may not be that of the majority now, it surely is held by a very large minority of our citizens, and the results of the September elections last year seem to furnish a complete justification of this conclusion. It is true that the temperance legislation on our Statute Books was of one political party, and it is also true that nearly every person opposed to the prohibitory law and its enforcement favors resubmission. But it may be asserted with equal truth that a leader in the prohibitory law is not confined to the adherents of either of the two great parties, and that the desire for resubmission is not confined to the enemies of that law. There are many men, earnest and sincere in their advocacy and support of temperance and enforced prohibition who believe those principles will be jeopardized by their resubmission to the people under the only method by which this can be accomplished at this time. To them the cause of prohibition is of far greater importance than the success either of Republicanism or Democracy, and to promote and conserve that cause they organize and maintain the Prohibition party. But they cheerfully sacrificed their own organization in behalf of the greater principle, and allying themselves with another party because of its promise to enforce the prohibitory law and its opposition to resubmission, contributed largely to its success. These men feel that resubmission granted by this Legislature would be a distinct and open endorsement by the dominant party of the law, and that the party of prohibition would be entitled to vote on an amendment to the Constitution when a very large number have unquestionably signified a desire to that effect.

It is extremely unfortunate for what I conceive to be the true cause of temperance that a resolution to resubmit the prohibitory amendment must be in form at least a practical concession by the Legislature of the present policy of prohibition, and not the authorization of a simple referendum to ascertain the people's views. Were it not for this fact and the probable effect that the mere passage of such a resolution would have upon the minds of the people, I believe there would be little or no opposition to the reasonable, plain and unencumbered proposition to place the original question before the voters again for their approval or rejection. If that particular and important objection could be removed and the question be referred to the people directly, solely on its merits and unhampered by the prejudice excited by the attitude and unnecessary legislative condemnation, the citizens of Maine would rally to reaffirm their belief in the prohibitory law, and the cause of temperance, infinitely strengthened and advanced. For if we accept the principle of the referendum we must recognize the fact that its fundamental strength lies in the right of an appeal to the people, and no good cause if fairly brought into popular consideration, hesitates to enter that Court or should fear its verdict.

The Passing of an Octogenarian.
Levi Bartlett, aged 85 years, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. E. N. Sweet at Clifton, O. T., on Sept. 20th, 1906, after a long and painful illness. Deceased was born at Norway, May 24th, 1820. He was married to Mary Wilkins August 1844, his wife having died at West Point, Nebraska, in 1882. Three children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Bartlett, all of whom survive: deceased, M. S. Bartlett of Hawthorn, Wisconsin, Ida S. Sweet of Clifton, Oklahoma, and E. E. Bartlett of Seattle, Washington.

Levi Bartlett's forebears were all of the old Puritan stock; and he was a direct descendant of Josiah Bartlett, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence. He was intensely an American, was proud of his country and had an unflinching trust in its future greatness. In principle and in his life he was strictly moral. The Golden Rule was his guide in his relations with fellow men. His religious convictions were his law, and a guide and rule of action. His home was his world. He was a true lover of Nature in all her moods.

The officers of Oxford County Agricultural Society will be in session Thursday, Jan. 17th at 9 o'clock, a. m., at assessors' office, South Paris, to revise premium list. Any of the members or patrons who have any suggestions to make are invited to attend.

Cutler-Cobb.

On the evening of Dec. 25, at the residence of Rev. J. H. Little, occurred the marriage of Charles Cutler to Jennie Cobb, both of South Paris, the nuptial knot being tied at eight o'clock by Rev. J. H. Little. The bride was prettily attired in pale blue silk muslin with lace trimmings and the groom in the usual dark suit.

After the ceremony the newly married couple were driven to Carroll Edwards', a cousin of the groom, where they were showered with rice and after congratulations were given the young couple they returned to Mrs. Angie Cutler's, mother of the groom.

On the following evening Dec. 26, the twenty-eight friends and relatives gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Cutler and gave them a surprise, and they were much surprised. As they entered the house they were cordially greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Cutler. They were entertained by graphophone selections and refreshments of cake and coffee were served. After a very pleasant evening the company departed leaving congratulations and good wishes with a goodly number of pretty and useful gifts for the couple. The presents were as follows:

New Year Assembly.

The Good Cheer supper and entertainment on New Year's night was largely attended and greatly enjoyed. Only the bad travelling prevented an overflowing house. About 150 sat down to supper. Before beginning on the bounties with which the tables were loaded, Mr. Little extended the New Year's greeting to all, and invoked the Divine blessing. The entertainment was one of the best of the season, and the committee, Mrs. Andrews and Mrs. Wilson, deserve the hearty thanks of all for the patient and faithful work which produced such excellent results, through the persistent drilling of the children. The farce which preceded the drills was well worth the admission price. The parts were well acted and the actors well deserved the praise extended to them.

About half of the waiters at the supper were young men in white and they did their part to perfection. A brief social talk followed the entertainment and all were finished before 10 o'clock. A large delegation came from Paris Hill and were present at supper and entertainment. As a social gathering this New Year Assembly was a success. The presentation of the farce would have done credit to professionals. Mrs. Herman Wilson and Mrs. Irving Andrews had charge of the entertainment and Mrs. Jeff Merrill of the supper.

William Lombard of High street has the king-pig-pig so far as reported. He was a black fellow and his skin shone like satin. The pig was 10 months and eight days old, and dressed, ready for market, 420 pounds. Mr. Lombard has a great liking for this breed of pigs. He says they are the cheapest pig to keep, that is, you get the most pork for your money. Mr. Lombard has had five of this breed of pigs, all black ones, in as many years, and their combined weight was nearly 1000 pounds. We are ready for the next pig story.

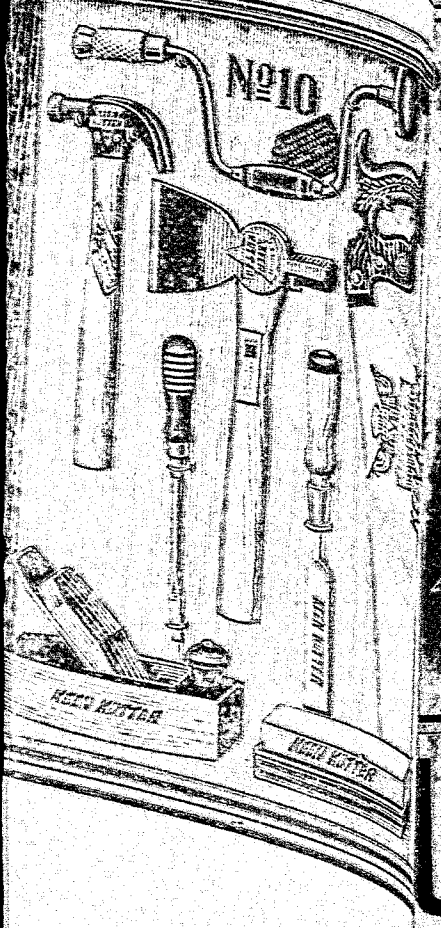

Four horses belonging to the Robinson Manufacturing Co. were precipitated into Lake Thompson by the giving away of the ice. Men and horses were engaged in scraping snow from the ice to make an ice speedway. Two horses were rescued not much the worse for their cold bath. One was pulled to the ice but soon died from the effects of the choking it received, while the third one sank when released from the road machine. The body of the dead horse came to the surface the next morning and was taken from the water.

A tramp called at a house on the outskirts of this village nearly two weeks ago, and asked for something to eat. The housewife, being very kind-hearted, gave him a cake which she had just baked for the family supper. The tramp eyed the cake suspiciously, but finally took it, ate it, and walked wearily on. Next day the tramp called at the same house and asked for water. Why! Exclaimed the housewife, aren't you the same man I gave cake to yesterday? Please, ma'am, I don't think I'll ever be the same man again, after eating that cake.
